TAYLOR BROS. HAVE GOOD GUERNSEY HERD

One of the best grade Guernsey herds in southern Wisconsin, where good blood has been introduced through blooded sires for building up high milk production, is the herd of Taylor and H. T. Taylor, east of Janesville. They have 46 heads and from the 27 cows in milk are obtaining better than 700 pounds of milk a day that will average 4.5 per cent in test. The herd book of the herd dates back to a chance made from Durhams to Guernsey and the cross is evident in the big, straight-lined and rich milking grades. The top cow is Erisola, an eight year old, with 64.5 pounds of fat to her credit in the C. T. A. for March. This cow had twin heifers and carries under development that would look good in most pure breeds. The herd bull that had been used until recently was Beauty Eagle Emperor of Riverdale, from the Dr. W. A. Munn herd, and an exceptional line of good heifers can be traced to this sire. The Taylor Brothers recently purchased a new herd sire from West Salem, Wis.

McBRIDE BUYS NEW HOLSTEIN HERD SIRE

J. H. McBride and son, Janesville, have purchased a new Holstein sire that in addition to being a really bred animal, has a creditable record in the show ring. Two good heifers from the McBride herd were consigned to the county sale to be held in the pavilion here on May 2. For building up their registered herd the McBrides purchased a grandson of King Sogis Pontiac, a son of Julius King Sogis Pontiac, and out of one of the famous frame cows with a 24 pound record as a three-year-old. This sire headed the Jefferson county show herd in 1922, winning third at the state fair, third at the National congress, and fourth at the National dairy show.

SOYBEANS ARE GOOD FOR BALANCED FEED

In recent experiments carried on at different agricultural colleges, it has been found that soybeans are practically equal to tankage in feeding value. In experiments tried at the Indiana station it was found that soybeans and corn when fed with a mineral mixture of 10 pounds of ground limestone, 10 pounds of 16 per cent acid phosphate, and one pound of salt, were equal to, if not better than corn and tankage. Experiments tried in other sections of the corn belt with corn and soybeans, hogged down, gave excellent results. In one experiment the hogs selling at $5.50 per 100 gave a return of $1.50 per bushel of soybeans and $1.14 per bushel for corn.

GOOD FERTILIZER IS NEEDED ON SOILS

Commercial fertilizers are going to be used to a considerable extent by the farmers of Rock county this year. Last year splendid results were secured from most fields where fertilizers were applied. Landon White, a farmer living near Afton, got very good results from applying 150 pounds of muriate of potash to well drained low land. By applying 75 pounds of muriate of potash at the cost of $52 per ton, Mr. White believes that he secured an increase of 40 bushels of corn per acre. Sixteen per cent acid phosphate, or Treble Super Phosphate, has given very good results on alfalfa and corn. The yield on a field of alfalfa was doubled when acid phosphate was applied in addition to lime. In buying commercial fertilizers, a farmer should always take into con-

TWO MORE SCHOOLS REOPEN AFTER EASTER

The Rock county schools, including school and the state school for the blind reopened Tuesday following the Easter vacation. Three speakers will address the training school pupils this week: Mr. Westendyke, manager of the New Gas Light company, talking Tuesday; J. L. Skavlen, noted authority on Indian lore, Wednesday, at the library, and the Rev. Charles Olson, pastor of St. Mary's church, talking Wednesday on the passion play.

SENIORS TO SELL TICKETS FOR PLAY

It has been decided, and a reserved seat ticket exchange conducted later. Miss Sarah Morris is class faculty advisor, and Miss Mildred Mandel is coaching the principals. Rehearsal was held last week and good progress is reported.

CHANGES MADE ON CANADIAN ORDERS

Citizens sending money orders to Canada now should consult postoffice officials here, as orders have recently been received changing some of the rulings. In the past it has been necessary to send separate advice on each money order. These were messages sent by the postmaster under separate cover, assuring the place of destination that the order was good. These have now been abolished, making this form of sending money much easier.

Mayor and Dulin Get Zealous.

With a sudden zeal the mayor and Alderman J. J. Dulin vehemently demanded enforcement of the law to the last letter at the polls this day when the subject came up in the council Monday night. The offending persons who were to be watched by the police, were the women. These women of Janesville, according to the mayor are the worst violators. The bootleggers may sell poison and the moonshine joints can run, but when it comes to a woman at the polls a riot call is to be sounded and all hands from the city hall rushed to see that one lady does not converse in too loud a tone with another. "All I want from you," said the captain of the ship to his crew, "is silence and a—d little of that." That seems to be what the mayor thinks about it or rather what Mr. Dulin thinks and the mayor generally thinks the same way a few minutes later.

But we are with the mayor in having an honest election. It is to be hoped that the police will have enforced the law all day long everywhere. If the police are let alone and have fewer bosses there will be no trouble about a good police administration. There have been violations of the letter of the law at the polls heretofore and if the police are to get anyone into the drug net it will probably be someone other than the women of Janesville.

You can plant a good garden now by using T. N. T. and a diamond drill.

Just What the Communal Radicals Want.

If the testimony at the trial of Foster in St. Joseph, Mo., did nothing else, it has disclosed much of what the communal radicals want and so also of its alter ego, the "Workers' Party." One, Ruthenberg, witness for the defense, a man who has qualified because he served a term for opposing the draft, a record not yet cleared by the Wisconsin legislature, and who has been a representative of the soviet government here in America, was forced to admit the writing of certain documents advocating the use of force in overthrowing the "present order," and besides, a disclosure of his deep and abiding hatred for the American Legion, shared by his kind. After stating that he had never advocated the use of force, there was read to Mr. Ruthenberg this paragraph from one of his published articles:

"The question of 'Soviet or Parliament' is not a question of distant theoretical importance. The advocacy of the Soviet form of organization as the organ of the workers' struggle for power, and the proletarian state, includes the acceptance of extra-parliamentary means of achieving power. This means the acceptance of the principle that the existing capitalist government will be overthrown through the mass powers of the Workers, AND THIS INCLUDES THE USE OF ARMED FORCES."

"Did you write that," sharply asked the assistant attorney general.

In a low voice, so low the stenographer had to ask it be repeated, Ruthenberg said:

"Yes, I did."

"Will you ask if the following is in the resolutions of the Third Communist Internationale," said Mr. Smith, reading:

"The organization of strike-breakers and cut-throats which are an old-time embellishment of American democracy, have not acquired a leading organ in the so-called 'American Legion' made up of the fops and fops of the war."

"I believe there is something like that in there," replied the witness.

From a stenographic and complete story of the trial the report proceeds with the State's attorney asking:

"Do you approve of the American Legion?"

The witness sat up squarely in his chair, the smile which had marked his face for some time disappeared, and with both a look and a tone of contempt almost shouted: "Most assuredly, I do not."

It is so well known and recognized a fact that a true communist radical, the advanced socialist and the followers of the doctrine of the proletariat dictatorship have removed the Supreme Being from all recognition, that it was not a shock when the witness had refused to swear "So help me God," but had affirmed that he would tell the truth. When the state's attorney read from the book, "The A. B. C. of Communism," that any one who clung to his religious faith after becoming a communist ceased to be a communist, Ruthenberg said he failed to recall it. The paragraph bearing on this point is interesting.

In practice no less than in theory, Communism is incompatible with religious faith. The Communist who rejects the commandments of religion and acts in accordance with the doctrine of the party, ceases to be one of the faithful. On the other hand, one who, while calling himself a Communist, continues to cling to his religious faith, ceases to be a Communist. The whole trial has shown that Foster was a part of that organized effort to overthrow the government of the United States backed with the aid of the soviet in one manner or another. Much matter has been submitted and testimony presented to still further fortify the United States in the position it assumes of refusal to recognize Russia, in spite of the delusions of Borah and the Women's Committee which called upon Secretary Hughes to ask that such recognition be made.

Then let us follow Foster after Ruthenberg. His own attorney asked Foster:

"Are you a believer in the Communist doctrine?"

"I am a believer in the Marxist Communist school."

"Have you ever belonged to any Communist organization?"

New Tests For Auto Drivers

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN

Washington.—Psychological tests for automobile drivers are one of the newest proposals to lessen the number of traffic accidents. The automobile driver has for some time been regarded as one of the most important factors to be considered in solving the serious traffic problem. There were 10,000,000 cars in this country in 1921. Last year the number amounted to 12,364,000. And experts say we shall not reach the saturation point until there are 20,000,000 automobiles—an average of one to a family—in the United States.

It is true the accident rate is not increasing in proportion to the rapid increase in cars. But there is a flat increase in traffic accidents, and the various systems of traffic regulation do not seem to reduce the toll in human lives.

The situation has been met by simpler traffic rules in some places and by more intricate rules in others. In some cities an attempt is being made to send to jail drivers who break the laws instead of merely fining them. Whether a more restrictive method of licensing drivers would be very much can only be surmised. But the idea is persistently advanced, and it is worth considering.

The point made is that individuals are permitted to drive machines without sufficient inquiry into their physical and temperamental fitness or unfitness to do so.

Police Commissioner Enright of New York City has shown that almost anybody can get a license. There is no test of vision, hearing, or reflexes. In a recent address he mentioned one case of a man 90 per cent blind who has a license and has been responsible for about a dozen traffic accidents in New York.

Commissioner Enright also regrets the lack of attention paid to a driver's character. A crook, he says, can get a driver's license without the slightest trouble. About five years ago a number of crimes were shown plainly to have been committed by collusion with taxicab drivers. Mr. Enright investigated the licensing of taxi drivers in New York City and out of 1200 new applicants in 1918 he found that about 300 had criminal records. The police commissioner finds that in the state of New York "there are in all probability 25,000 people with criminal records who are operating automobiles who are still criminals, and who are operating these automobiles in the commission of crimes."

This is the condition in one city and state, but licensing conditions best described as lenient exist in the greater part of the country. The American Automobile association says only 11 states require physical and mental examination, and demonstration as to the ability of the car owner to operate his car successfully and safely.

Even where it is required that an applicant for a license understand the traffic regulations and signals, and demonstrate his ability to run a car through traffic, he is generally given a very superficial physical test of vision and hearing, and the requirements do not often show what he will do with his car in an emergency. Nor do they reveal his attitude toward responsibility and the rights of others.

Tests of vision and hearing adapted to automobile driving might be easily devised, psychologists say. They also say a test of the natural speed with which a driver acts—his reaction time—could be given. Dr. Raymond Dodge, well known psychologist, advocates a reaction time test for drivers and describes one of the simplest methods of giving it, as follows:

"The time that it takes for a signal to reach the eye, to be transmitted to the brain, and for the brain to send its order down through the nerves of the arm seems instantaneous, but it can be measured by a reaction time test used in our psychological laboratories every day. A person, seated at a table with his finger on a telegraph key. When the signal flashes, the electric current also starts a pointer marking off the fractions of a second upon a dial. When the key is pressed the current is broken and the hand on the dial stops moving. This gives a record of the time it takes the person to get and act on an idea."

The importance of knowing whether a driver can react quickly to a situation is obvious. A person who is abnormally slow-witted, or who goes to pieces when an unusual situation is presented, is more liable to get into serious traffic difficulties than a driver who acts quickly and with a clear head. Tendencies of an individual in these respects can be measured, the psychologists tell us.

A test of an individual's attitude toward the rights of others would seem to be a more complicated and difficult proposition than a measurement of his mental speed and vision. But Dr. Dodge and others think that it would be possible for psychologists to work out a practical test.

As conditions stand, cars are being driven by the insane and feeble-minded. Drivers under the influence of liquor, drugs, or an abnormal craving for speed are too numerous to attract much attention. The sense of moral responsibility of all these types of drivers is apt to be, as the scientist would say, inhibited.

It is not easy to put into effect more rigorous regulations for licensing drivers. And it would be particularly difficult to gain approval for the psychological type of test because of the generally popular belief that every human being is an inexplicable mystery entirely different from every other mind. This belief leads the average person to regard with amusement the idea of measuring the intelligence or moral sense or mental speed of an individual.

The fact is, the absolute value of tests as a means of revealing human capacity and tendencies is still disputed. Probably no test ever devised was completely reliable. Every one who might take it. But most psychologists believe that tests can be invented which fairly measure the great majority of individuals. This was demonstrated in the army where the Alpha Intelligence test was checked up by reports of superior officers and by the soldiers' records. The evidence showed that the intelligence test made few mistakes.

The Alpha test, which could be given in less than an hour to several hundred men at a time, made it possible for an army to be classified quickly according to its mental capacity. Automobile drivers would not be examined by such wholesale methods. Individual tests would be possible, and individual tests are almost always more exact.

"I have not,"

Karl Marx is the father of socialism—the Marxist socialism. Any and all other "socialism" is not worth attention except as a literary production since it is only theory and based on an impossible altruism. But Marx was the inspiration of Lenin and the language of Marx is the vocabulary of the soviet. The "Communist Manifesto" by Marx is the bible of the socialist. Mr. Foster says he is a follower of Karl Marx. The corner stone of Marx is this paragraph:

The Communists disdain to conceal their views and aims. They openly declare that their ends can be attained only by the forcible overthrow of all existing social conditions. Let the ruling classes tremble at a Communist revolution. The proletarians have nothing to lose but their chains. THEY HAVE A WORLD TO WIN. Workingmen of all countries, unite!

Mr. Foster has a "world to win" with the "forcible overthrow of all existing social conditions."

Some people question America as a contributor to the World's best music. What about the factory whistles that make it possible for us to feed and clothe a score of millions elsewhere?

WERE YOU A SUCCESS TODAY?

You would be a success tomorrow?
But that is so far away.
And whatever the task, this is what men ask:
Were you a success today?

You would come to the greater credit,
Big deeds shall your merit tell;
But today, my lad, with the task you had,
Would you say that you did it well?

Tomorrow you'll rise to splendor,
Tomorrow you'll win, you say?
You will do your best with the larger test—
Did you do your best today?

You would come to some fine achievement,
And truly I hope you may;
You will prove your worth on this fine old earth—
Did you prove your worth today?

Don't wait for some far tomorrow,
Success isn't built that way;
Fame shall come to you by the things you do,
So how did you serve today?

You would be a success tomorrow,
Look back at your work and say,
Can you hold your pride in the way you're tried,
Were you a success today?

LOVES LABOR LOST

A man who writes novels
And hopes to make a living
Must know at the beginning
It is a thankless occupation
And full of unseen pitfalls.
Literary friends of ours
Started about a year ago
To write a novel on
The age of adolescence,
Of bobbed hair, short skirts
And flappers who spoke slang.
He observed a whole lot,
Then went into seclusion,
In a log cabin in Maine,
And he wrote and wrote
And he saw nobody, and finally
The great novel was complete.
And it was a corking story—but
While he was away in the woods,
The bobbed hair, short skirts
And flappers disappeared
And he saw nobody, and finally
The great novel was complete.
As a high-wheeled bicycle,
To have it published he must wait
Until those things come back.
In the meantime he has a job
In a brokerage office.

When a woman asks your advice find out what she intends to do and advise her to do it.

Some one has been kind enough to send us a handsomely bound little volume of biographies entitled "The Everlast Boxing Record" book, and we are now engaged in reading it from kiver to kiver. The story is full of action, and the deeds of red-hot men, although it has a few contradictions. For instance, it says that Battling Siki holds the lightweight championship. In that his color is black, by the book's own confession, should not this be the dark championship that he holds? We are open to conviction. The thought just happened to occur, that's all.

There are any entrancing passages, for example, the life and works of Kid Norfolk. It seems that this brunette hero has been a man of achievement for a long time. We read that Kid Norfolk was born in 1825 under the name of William Ward. At the tender age of twenty-one years he knocked out Young Roughhouse in two rounds and then knocked out Young Gunboat Smith in two rounds. Neither of these young men had appeared in the Social Register since 1910. Kid Norfolk was married twice and had many other important battles, but, alas, in 1917, he was laid low by a veteran, Sam Langford Romance, with a punch. The book is full of it.

Statistics show that 84 per cent of the world's automobiles are in use in the United States—and doubtless nearly 100 per cent of the Fords.

Who's Who Today

By IRWIN B. LAUGHLIN.

When Irwin B. Laughlin was graduated from Yale he was headed for an industrial career. He was, in fact, at one-time treasurer of the Jones-Laughlin Steel company. But the diplomatic service called him. Now, after an interval of red-hot years in the diplomatic ranks he is mentioned as a possible choice for the post of U. S. minister to Greece.

His first position in the service was as private secretary to the then U. S. minister to Japan, which he took in 1903. Then he filled the following positions: Second assistant secretary at St. Petersburg, legation at Tokyo, secretary legation at Bangkok and consul general for Siam, second secretary legation at Peking, assistant secretary at St. Petersburg, secretary to the American legation at London, and then charge d'affaires there, and then consul.

During the conference on limitation of arms, at Washington, Laughlin served as secretary to Henry Cabot Lodge.

Laughlin was born in Pittsburg April 26, 1871, and is a graduate of Yale.

Personal Health Service

THE COMMON DRINKING GLASS

A great deal of oratory has been uttered in recent years concerning the common drinking cup; very little has been written or said about the uncleaned glasses, spoons and other utensils of the soda fountain. I say uncleaned, meaning that it is a common practice to give such utensils the merest dash of cold water and call them clean. I have all due respect for terms and for various diseases which are communicable, but I'd prefer to take my chances with any common drinking cup, even though it were visibly dirty, than drink from the glass or cup from the soda fountain.

A few fountains are equipped to give these wares a proper hot soap and water washing or at least a thorough scalding; when such cleaning is done no one need have any anxiety about using the ware. Unfortunately, such cleaning is not the rule, but the exception.

Albeit the common drinking cup has acquired an evil reputation, it has not earned its bad name. That is, there is no instance on record, so far as I have been able to discover, of an epidemic of disease nor even of a single case of communicable disease which has been reasonably traced to the use of the common drinking cup. It is conceivable that a person with some slight crack or abrasion of the lip or tongue might be infected by disease germs which had been left on the rim of a drinking cup but a moment before by some one who harbored the germs in his mouth. But if this ever has happened it has certainly been an excessively rare occurrence. So, for I maintain, that as a matter of fact one need not hesitate to take a good pull from the common drinking cup when nothing better is available. It should not, however, be used as a whole, and I have a wholesome respect for disease germs. But knowing something of their ways of life, I have no great fear of disease germs which have been subjected to exposure. A little daylight, even diffuse day light without any direct sunlight, takes all the pop out of a germ; a little oxygen fairly fabulously the most virulent microbe. It seems a happy arrangement, how the very things which give you and me greater health and vigor give our horrid little microscopic enemies mal de microbes.

To my way of thinking, a draught

Q. What is the Ethic clause in the constitution? A. M. P.

A. Article I, section II, paragraph 1, is referred to in the constitution. Q. Relate Abraham Lincoln's connection with the Black Hawk war? S. E.

A. In Brooks' True story of Abraham Lincoln it says that in 1832 the Indians were on the war path, and he was sent by the governor of Illinois for volunteers to fight them. Ma-ka-tai-me-she-ke-ik-ah was chief of the Sacs who made fierce war on the border white men. In Sagadahoc county two men were nominated for captain of the volunteers. By a large majority, Lincoln, one of the two, was elected. His regiment never had an encounter with the Indians. Lincoln had a difficult time with his men whom, at last, he brought into some kind of discipline. When the time of their service expired, and the men demanded to return home, Lincoln would not return with them. "We came to fight this thing out," he said. "I'm not going home until it is over." So, when his company was disbanded, he went home a Captain. Lincoln enlisted as a private and served to the end of the war.

Q. What is meant by an ell in the neck? K. L.

A. The ell is an English unit of measure equal to 45 inches.

Q. What does 'the world alphabet' mean? M. C.

A. It is another way of saying A. B. C's. Alpha is the Greek word for "A" and beta is a shortened form of the Greek beta.

A Personal Experience With Standard Oil

"Chicago, March 7.—I read with a great deal of interest the editorial, 'Shall Ruin Be the Penalty of Success,' in connection with the report of the senate committee attacking the various Standard Oil companies.

I want to take this opportunity of relating my personal experience with the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

Having changed from a coal to an oil burning furnace, I was in the market for fuel oil, and after figuring with several oil companies I closed a contract with the Standard Oil of Indiana, simply because their contract was more liberal and advantageous to me in every way.

I secured cheaper oil; better oil, and first class service."

D. G. Moustakis

The letter reprinted above appeared in the Voice of the People columns of a Chicago newspaper, March 9, 1923.

Cheaper oil — better oil — and first class service.

That, in terse simple terms, expresses the ideals which have made the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) big.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is big because it is called upon to render a big service. Its financial statement deals in big figures because it does an enormous volume of business in a multiplicity of products entering innumerable fields of industry.

Because the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) manufactures a great number of useful products from a single basic material, it is able to cut the manufacturing cost of each item in a way that accrues to the benefit and financial advantage of the consumer whether he buys a quart or a carload.
